

EXTRA. 80 MISSING.

Their Bodies Believed to Be in the Park
Place Ruins.

Seventeen Identified of the 34 Charred Corpses
Taken Out.

Police Arrest an Italian Ghoul in the Act of Robbing the Dead.

Stench from Burned Human Flesh a Menace to Public Health.

The Searchers Watched by Anxious Friends and Relatives of the Missing.

BODIES RECOVERED—84.
IDENTIFIED—17.
MISSING—80.

Up to 8.30 o'clock this afternoon thirty-four bodies had been recovered from the ruins of the Park place fire. Of these seventeen have been identified and the others are unknown.

How many more lie buried beneath the mass of brick and mortar, charred and blackened timber and heavy printing presses and other machinery that fill up the narrow space between the standing walls of the demolished building is only a matter of conjecture.

It is probable that they number nearly one hundred, at least. The list of those reported missing by their friends, and who were known to have been employed by the various firms who occupied the building, has been reduced to eighty.

Possibly some of these will turn up alive and well. A number of such cases have already been reported to the police, and several persons visiting the scene of the ruins this morning, who said that they had been reported among the lost.

Very little progress was made during the early hours of the morning in removing the debris from the ruins. After the heavy rain-storm, when work was resumed about 1 o'clock, the ghastly scene was illuminated by two electric lights, one of which was hung on the north side of Park place, just opposite the ruins and the other just above the gangway of workers.

The block between College place and Green-wich street on Park place is closed, and thick ropes have been stretched across the street from corner to corner.

CROWDS BLOCK THE STREET.
Hundreds of people remained to watch the workers all night long, and the number was increased to thousands when daylight came, and the early-morning trains on the elevated began to bring down their loads of passengers from uptown.

The work of delving for the dead continued unintermitted through the night, except at times when the rain poured down in such torrents as to render labor impossible. Except at these times all the fire lines at either end of the block were lined with waiting friends or relatives of the missing.

When they were driven from the street by the rain they sought shelter in doorways or wherever protection might be found, but as soon as it cleared their weary and mournful vigil was resumed.

Soon after 8 o'clock in the morning the squad of men who were digging near the street line of the fallen building at 74 Park place, came upon another body. That was the seventeenth found.

It was crushed in between a mass of rubbish and charred timbers, and the flames had turned it beyond recognition. It was twisted into the most horrible contortions, and the head and face were crushed to a shapeless mass.

After two hours' hard work the beams and timbers which pinned the body in the ruins were removed, and it was taken out and placed in box No. 12. No attempt was made to identify it, although there were several anxious watchers at hand who were looking for lost friends.

They turned away from the shocking spectacle in sorrow. Just before 9 o'clock the city health officer made its appearance and removed the body to the morgue, where it still remains among the unidentified dead.

As will be seen in the list of victims already dug out from the ruins, a number of those who were found yesterday have been identified. Most of these were not so shockingly disfigured, and were taken out from under the piles of brick near the street line of the building.

THREE MORE CHARRED BODIES.
Towards daybreak the efforts of the firemen and laborers were directed towards the great heap of machinery which lies at the north end of the ruins.

They managed to clear out a small place in front of the great mass of wreckage, and when they pulled away a part of the flooring, which was propped up against the heavy machinery and printing presses they found three more bodies, all frightfully charred and burned. They lay close together and were literally roasted through and through.

Broken beams and the weight of the iron work wedged them in so tightly that it seemed impossible to remove the bodies whole without first raising the crushing weight above them.

It was not until 7 o'clock that they were finally taken out. Three of the pine boxes which stood on the platform in front of No. 60 Park place were brought to the edge of the excavation and one by one the poor charred remnants were carefully lifted out and placed in those receptacles.

One of the bodies had lost a leg and an arm, while another had lost a foot. The third was simply a mass of roasted flesh, and so crushed together that neither arms nor legs could be distinguished.

Part of the blackened flesh peeled off and stuck to the edges of the iron boxes of the enormous printing press which lay upon it as the body was taken out.

The odor of burned flesh was horrible, and the stench from the ruins was a menace to public health.

PAKE PLACE FRONT, SHOWING REMAINS AT THE TIME OF THE ACCIDENT.

No. 68.	No. 70.	No. 72.	No. 74.	No. 76.	No. 78.
Empty.	Lieber & Mass.	Lieber & Mass.	Lieber & Mass.	A. W. Lindsay & Co.	A. W. Lindsay & Co.
Empty.	Lieber & Mass.	Lieber & Mass.	Lieber & Mass.	A. W. Lindsay & Co.	A. W. Lindsay & Co.
Empty.	Ellis & Macdonald.	Ellis & Macdonald.	The South Publishing Co.	Lieber & Mass.	Lieber & Mass.
Empty.	Ellis & Macdonald.	Ellis & Macdonald.	The South Publishing Co.	Lieber & Mass.	Lieber & Mass.
Empty.	Rosenfeld's Paint Shop.	A. W. Trip's Drug Store.	Petersen's Restaurant.	Gilmore's Store.	J. Klein, Jeweller.
Empty.	Rosenfeld's Paint Shop.	Empty.	Empty.	Empty.	Empty.

The bodies are buried under the ruins of Nos. 68, 70, 72 and 74 Park place. Nos. 76 and 78 are standing.

even the plucky firemen, who were used to witness scenes of horror, recoiled, almost overcome by it.

The bodies were lifted out in sheets and tarpaulins, which were placed under them to prevent them from falling to pieces.

The boxes, which were numbered 13, 14 and 15 were then carried back to the improvised morgue in front of No. 60, and the dead wagon was sent for again.

It did not arrive until after 9 o'clock, and meanwhile a number of persons who were waiting to identify friends and relatives were admitted within the firelines to look at the dead.

Several of them became sick at the spectacle and turned away with horror pictured upon their faces.

Deputy Coroner Donlin was on hand soon after these three bodies were taken out and made an examination of each one.

That of No. 13 was evidently a boy of fourteen or fifteen years. He was bare-chested and long, blue woolen stockings. One foot was burned off completely, and the flesh of one arm was entirely gone.

The face was unrecognizable, and the whole head was simply a charred and blackened stump.

A heavy canvas shoe, the leather of which was burned to a crisp, was found near the body.

It contained the bleeding remnants of a foot, and the fireman who took it out placed it upon the top of this box.

ONE TWO BURNED OFF.
The body in No. 14 was in a still more frightful condition. One leg was missing from the knee, and the body was so crushed that the entrails protruded.

It was apparently that of a man, although his age could not be determined.

Part of the clothing of the upper part of the body remained, and when Dr. Donlin ordered a search to be made a number of articles were found which may lead to his identification.

There were three brass pool checks, upon which were stamped the name of "John Steinkamp, Pool Room," but no address was given.

A small leather purse contained a dozen Hoboken ferry tickets, a small set key, 11 cents in money, and three small square brown paper slips folded together.

On the lower part of each slip was printed the firm address of E. Hilday & Sons, the Grand street dry-goods place, and at the top in the blank space left for the insertion of a name was written in ink "M. Stein, $17.00."

The same name and amount was written on each slip.

In the third box, No. 15, the body was so disfigured and the clothing so completely burned that nothing could be found which could possibly give any clue to its identity.

The three bodies remained in the boxes on the sidewalk for nearly two hours and a half, for, although the dead wagon had been summoned when they were discovered, it did not return until nearly 9.30. When it finally took them away it was found that the charred shoe with its gaudy contents had been left behind.

A BODY BURNED IN TWO.
During this interval the workmen and firemen had been able to penetrate still further into the mass of debris, and four other bodies were visible. Only one of them, however, was removed in time to take it to the morgue, and the other three were left to be buried with the other two which had been lying so long on the sidewalk.

This was the body of a large, heavily built man, which was found near the surface of the wreckage in the south end of the ruins only a few feet from the street. The face was not so badly disfigured, but the lower portion of the body had been burned to a crisp.

Both legs and hands were burned off, and it was supposed to be the body of Ferdinand W. Griffin, the wholesale druggist, but as it was not supposed to be the body of the man, it was not taken to the morgue.

It was not until 10 o'clock that the bodies of two boys, one of whom was identified as that of Edwin H. Shattuck, were dug out.

Mr. Shattuck, the body's mother, who was in the crowd of anxious watchers, and she immediately recognized the body of her son by his clothing.

The poor woman was horrified at the sight and nearly fainted when she looked at the body.

Mr. Theodore Hemminger, of 336 East 57th st., was among the first to see the body.

He was looking for his son, who was a student at the University of the City, and he was very anxious to see the body.

He was looking for his son, who was a student at the University of the City, and he was very anxious to see the body.

He was looking for his son, who was a student at the University of the City, and he was very anxious to see the body.

He was looking for his son, who was a student at the University of the City, and he was very anxious to see the body.

He was looking for his son, who was a student at the University of the City, and he was very anxious to see the body.

He was looking for his son, who was a student at the University of the City, and he was very anxious to see the body.

He was looking for his son, who was a student at the University of the City, and he was very anxious to see the body.

He was looking for his son, who was a student at the University of the City, and he was very anxious to see the body.

He was looking for his son, who was a student at the University of the City, and he was very anxious to see the body.

He was looking for his son, who was a student at the University of the City, and he was very anxious to see the body.

He was looking for his son, who was a student at the University of the City, and he was very anxious to see the body.

He was looking for his son, who was a student at the University of the City, and he was very anxious to see the body.

He was looking for his son, who was a student at the University of the City, and he was very anxious to see the body.

He was looking for his son, who was a student at the University of the City, and he was very anxious to see the body.

He was looking for his son, who was a student at the University of the City, and he was very anxious to see the body.

He was looking for his son, who was a student at the University of the City, and he was very anxious to see the body.

He was looking for his son, who was a student at the University of the City, and he was very anxious to see the body.

He was looking for his son, who was a student at the University of the City, and he was very anxious to see the body.

He was looking for his son, who was a student at the University of the City, and he was very anxious to see the body.

He was looking for his son, who was a student at the University of the City, and he was very anxious to see the body.

He was looking for his son, who was a student at the University of the City, and he was very anxious to see the body.

He was looking for his son, who was a student at the University of the City, and he was very anxious to see the body.

He was looking for his son, who was a student at the University of the City, and he was very anxious to see the body.

He was looking for his son, who was a student at the University of the City, and he was very anxious to see the body.

He was looking for his son, who was a student at the University of the City, and he was very anxious to see the body.

He was looking for his son, who was a student at the University of the City, and he was very anxious to see the body.

He was looking for his son, who was a student at the University of the City, and he was very anxious to see the body.

ing in the act of rifling the pockets of the clothing of a victim of this dreadful disaster. James Mitchell, of 213 West Thirty-eighth street, and a lad named William Sullivan, of 174 East One Hundred and Seventh street, standing in the throng of people in the street, saw a low-slung, swarthy Italian, who was among the laborers employed in clearing away the ruins, stoop over a blackened object.

After a moment he half arose, peering about him stealthily. Then he put something in his pocket and best over the dark object again.

The two citizens told policeman John P. Sweeney, of the Charles street squad, and Sweeney rushed upon the ghoul and arrested him.

The fellow cowered and cringed and whined, but he was hustled off to the Church street station, other officers keeping the crowd back.

The word was soon passed that Officer Sweeney's prisoner had been robbing the dead, and the crowd was infuriated. They made a rush for the station, but better counsel prevailed and they dispersed peacefully.

On his person was found a small silver watch and chain, a brass foot rule, a brass key and a pocket-knife, all taken from the clothing of some poor victims.

The prisoner told Justice Dwyer that his name was Rosco Savano and that his home was at the Five Points.

He claimed that he intended to return the property to his "boss," but, on account of his having hurriedly thrown the vest to one side, Justice Dwyer held him for trial.

STENCH FROM DEAD BODIES.
Inspector Byrnes Reports It a Menace to Public Health.

Acting Police Supt. Byrnes this morning notified President Charles G. Wilson, of the Health Board, that the sanitary conditions at the scene of the Park place disaster were menacing to public health.

The odor arising from the burned and charred bodies still in the ruins was described by Supt. Byrnes as increasing in offensiveness, and the condition is such as required immediate steps to prevent the engendering and spread of disease.

President Wilson immediately detailed Sanitary Inspector Alvin H. Doty and Charles E. W. Martin and placed them under Supt. Byrnes' orders. The latter put them under command of Sgt. John J. Harter, and the three proceeded at once to the spot to conduct the work of disinfecting the ruins.

The Health Department officials have instructed Drs. Doty and Miller to have disinfectants poured over the ruins to-day.

SEVENTEEN IDENTIFIED.
Relatives Recognize Some of the Charred Bodies Taken Out.

Of the 33 charred bodies so far taken out seventeen have been identified.

The unknown dead lie in plain pine boxes at the morgue, and each coffin has been given a number. The list of dead so far is as follows:

DON OF THE RUINS.
BREITNER, CHARLES, fifteen years old, No. 245 East 17th street, Brooklyn.

COLE, LEONARD R., about thirty-five years old, married, and lived in Madison street, near 17th street, Brooklyn. He was killed at the scene of the fire.

DESHOR, ABRAHAM, seventeen years old, No. 171 East 17th street, Brooklyn.

GIBBS, JOHN, five years, son of Alexander Gibbs, No. 227 Greenwich street, Brooklyn.

HART, FRANK, thirty-three years old, No. 123 East 17th street, Brooklyn.

HEAGNEY, ANNE, four years, daughter of Eugene F. Heagney, No. 61 Park place, Brooklyn.

HEIDENRICH, JACOB, sixteen years old, No. 195 East 10th street, Brooklyn.

LOHMEYER, GEORGE, fifteen years old, No. 292 East 10th street, Brooklyn.

PETERSEN, ANDREW R., twenty-two years old, No. 253 Third avenue, son of the proprietor and cashier of Peteresen's Restaurant.

SLATTERY, MICHAEL, No. 1107 Park avenue, employed by the Empire City Hotel, was killed at the scene of the fire.

STEINER, GUSTAV, twenty-four years old, No. 211 East 10th street, Brooklyn.

WALZER, OTTO, twenty-four years old, No. 108 East 10th street, Brooklyn.

ZICKERT, GUSTAV, twenty-two years old, No. 110 Washington street, Brooklyn.

BOX 1. Unknown man, about fifty years old, 11 inches tall, weight about fifty pounds, dark complexion, dark hair, white shirt, white trousers, white shoes.

BOX 2. Unknown man, about thirty-five years old, 11 inches tall, weight about fifty pounds, dark complexion, dark hair, white shirt, white trousers, white shoes.

BOX 3. Unknown man, about thirty-five years old, 11 inches tall, weight about fifty pounds, dark complexion, dark hair, white shirt, white trousers, white shoes.

CINCINNATI - 2 NEW YORK - 3

Giants and Porktowns in Their Last Western Series.

JOHN EWING TWISTS THE BALL

Danny Richardson Returns to His Place in the Diamond.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)
BARRELL GROUNDS, CINCINNATI, Aug. 24.—A heavy shower began to fall just about a quarter of an hour before the time for the Cincinnati-New York game to start. It cleared off, however, in a few minutes, and the game was begun a trifle late.

Ewing was killed to play second base for the visitors, but when they took the field Richardson appeared at second and Glascock at short.

Connor is laid up with a bruised hand, Whistler filling his place.

The men faced the box in this order: Cincinnati—McPhee, 2b; Halligan, r. f.; Browning, l. f.; Holliday, c. f.; Kelly, 1b; Mullane, 3b; Smith, & Harrison, c. f.; Ewing, p.

First INNING—McPhee opened the game with a fly to Richardson. Halligan lifted the ball over Tiersan's head in right for three bases and the latter put them under command of Sgt. John J. Harter, and the three proceeded at once to the spot to conduct the work of disinfecting the ruins.

The Health Department officials have instructed Drs. Doty and Miller to have disinfectants poured over the ruins to-day.

SEVENTEEN IDENTIFIED.
Relatives Recognize Some of the Charred Bodies Taken Out.

Of the 33 charred bodies so far taken out seventeen have been identified.

The unknown dead lie in plain pine boxes at the morgue, and each coffin has been given a number. The list of dead so far is as follows:

DON OF THE RUINS.
BREITNER, CHARLES, fifteen years old, No. 245 East 17th street, Brooklyn.

COLE, LEONARD R., about thirty-five years old, married, and lived in Madison street, near 17th street, Brooklyn. He was killed at the scene of the fire.

DESHOR, ABRAHAM, seventeen years old, No. 171 East 17th street, Brooklyn.

GIBBS, JOHN, five years, son of Alexander Gibbs, No. 227 Greenwich street, Brooklyn.

HART, FRANK, thirty-three years old, No. 123 East 17th street, Brooklyn.

HEAGNEY, ANNE, four years, daughter of Eugene F. Heagney, No. 61 Park place, Brooklyn.

HEIDENRICH, JACOB, sixteen years old, No. 195 East 10th street, Brooklyn.

LOHMEYER, GEORGE, fifteen years old, No. 292 East 10th street, Brooklyn.

PETERSEN, ANDREW R., twenty-two years old, No. 253 Third avenue, son of the proprietor and cashier of Peteresen's Restaurant.

SLATTERY, MICHAEL, No. 1107 Park avenue, employed by the Empire City Hotel, was killed at the scene of the fire.

STEINER, GUSTAV, twenty-four years old, No. 211 East 10th street, Brooklyn.

WALZER, OTTO, twenty-four years old, No. 108 East 10th street, Brooklyn.

ZICKERT, GUSTAV, twenty-two years old, No. 110 Washington street, Brooklyn.

BOX 1. Unknown man, about fifty years old, 11 inches tall, weight about fifty pounds, dark complexion, dark hair, white shirt, white trousers, white shoes.

BOX 2. Unknown man, about thirty-five years old, 11 inches tall, weight about fifty pounds, dark complexion, dark hair, white shirt, white trousers, white shoes.

BOX 3. Unknown man, about thirty-five years old, 11 inches tall, weight about fifty pounds, dark complexion, dark hair, white shirt, white trousers, white shoes.

CHICAGO - 3 BROOKLYN - 1

Papa Anse and the Bridegrooms Try
Conclusions.

See the exploring Search Party.
Will they find what they are looking for it?
Alas, and thank goodness, no.
They are looking for Sir Timothy Keefe.

AT END OF 7TH INNING.

CHICAGO - 3
BROOKLYN - 1

Battle in Progress Between Bal-maeoda and the Insurgents.

Foreign News by Cable.

Bargain Dependent Upon the Defeat
of Germany.

Queen Victoria and President Carnot
Exchange Compliments.

The Labor Congress Condemns the
Sweating System and Piece Work.

The Story About Balmaceda's Silver
Selsure Confirmed.

Fasest and Offensive Partnership.

Eight District Tammany Picnic.

Results at Chicago.

Amateur Baseball Notes.

Jeweller Mabus Says His Wife Is False.

The results of to-day's races at Saratoga will be found on Third Page.

The column devoted to Turf matters will be found on the Second Page.

EXTRA. SALISBURY

Beats 'Em All Out in the Third Race at Guttenburg.

DIXIE WINS THE FIRST-TO-DAY.

Wigwam Takes the Second with Vocalite Second.

See the exploring Search Party.
Will they find what they are looking for it?
Alas, and thank goodness, no.
They are looking for Sir Timothy Keefe.

AT END OF 7TH INNING.

CHICAGO - 3
BROOKLYN - 1

Battle in Progress Between Bal-
maeoda and the Insurgents.

Foreign News by Cable.

Bargain Dependent Upon the Defeat
of Germany.

Queen Victoria and President Carnot
Exchange Compliments.

The Labor Congress Condemns the
Sweating System and Piece Work.

The Story About Balmaceda's Silver
Selsure Confirmed.

Fasest and Offensive Partnership.

Eight District Tammany Picnic.

Results at Chicago.

Amateur Baseball Notes.

Jeweller Mabus Says His Wife Is False.

</